IAN ARCHER

Course leader — MA Digital Fashion Innovation MA (RCA)

After graduating from the Royal College of Art with an MA Fashion Menswear Ian Archer originally worked in London as a designer specializing in urban street & sportswear.

On the strength of this experience he was invited to work overseas, initially starting in New Zealand, ultimately spending 25+ years working in Australasia, America, Japan, and Europe working with a series of internationally recognised brands.

With a love for narrative within design combined with a passion for cut and silhouette, Ian worked his way from designer to creative director, working closely with both product design, and brand communication to create rich brand DNA and authenticity for labels such as John Richmond, Boxfresh, Black (Australasia), Mooks (International) and Speedo (International).

In 2015 Ian returned to the UK, after spending time within education as a guest lecturer, he joined AUB as a full time Senior Lecturer in Design & Creative Cutting. He continues to work as a free-lance consultant.
